

DS PROGRAM

THE MOST EFFECTIVE JEWISH BEHAVIOR MODIFICATION PROGRAM
FOR BOYS AGES 4-10 WITH IMPULSIVE OR OPPOSITIONAL BEHAVIOR

Medicaid & Child Health Plus accepted

CLINICAL FEATURES

Shown to improve:

- Attention skills
- Problem solving
- Self-regulation
- Frustration tolerance
- Psycho-Social Rehabilitation
- Impulse control
- Rule following
- Self esteem
- Compliance
- Social skills

FULL PROGRAM
7/2-8/22
FIRST SESSION
7/2-7/26
SECOND SESSION
7-27 - 8/22

PROGRAM FEATURES

- Evidence-Based Practices
- Sports Skills Training
- Sports Activities
- Trained Staff
- Specialties
- Licensed Professionals
- Arts & crafts
- State-of-the-art Campus
- Trips
- Swimming / Olympic size pool

PARENTS SPEAK

“Your program was the most positive and successful experience my son has had in years.”

“My relationship with my son has improved tremendously thanks to the program’s intervention and parent training.”

ASK US ABOUT OUR PARENT TRAINING COURSE

Proudly helping families and children from all over the country and Israel!

APPLY HERE

PROGRAM DIRECTORS:

Dr. Yitzy Goldberg, PhD | Yossie Feintuch, LCSW
Shaya Baum MS.Ed, LMSW

BUS SERVICE PROVIDED FROM

Brooklyn, Queens,
West Hempstead & The five towns

347.730.1166

Financial assistance available

DSPROGRAMSINC@GMAIL.COM

Continued from page 8

Dear Editor,

So I'm davening Shacharis in my shteeble last week when it happened again.

I was really getting into my Shemonah Esrei with some extra special kavannah due to the current tragic situation in Eretz Yisroel when inevitably someone's cellphone starts ringing!

Now, it wouldn't have been so bad if it was just the old fashioned, classic ringing – I might have been able to ignore that – but no, this guy had “Oh, When the Saints Come Marching In” as his ringtone!

Now, had he immediately turned it off, I might have been able to resume my concentration and continue davening but no, this genius doesn't know how to shut it off! Everyone in shul starts NUUing and NEEing, but to no avail!

Louis Armstrong is already into the second verse and everybody is looking up and staring daggers at him when he finally gives up trying to figure out how to shut it off and decides to answer the phone.

“Hello, who is this?” he yells loudly into the phone. “Who? Fanny?”

“Whaddaya want? Speak louder, WHAT? I can't hear you. I left my hearing aid home! What? WHAT? One dozen or two? WHAT? Cholov Yisroel? Blue or red? WHAT'S THAT? Honey nut or plain? I can't talk now. I'm in shul davening! GOODBYE!”

Thus 100+ men had their concentration shattered and their Shemonah Esrei ruined, but at least we all knew what he would be having for breakfast!

But that was only the forshpice (appetizer)!

A few days later, after the gabbai warned everybody to silence their phones, some Yookle's phone went off, this time playing “Who Let The Dogs Out?”

Wouldn't it be ironic but appropriate if somebody's ringtone would play “The Sound Of Silence!”

Country Yossi Toiv

Dear Editor,

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to you. Several months ago, we conducted an interview to showcase The Just One Life project. Malkie Schulman, an exceptional writer and interviewer, devoted extensive hours to our discussions. A few weeks ago, the culmination of our collaboration materialized in a story featured in your publication, shedding light on Just One Life and offering a glimpse into its significance.

In The Jewish Home newspaper, this narrative illuminated Just One Life's mission –to support and empower women and families during pregnancy in crisis.

Over the years, our collective efforts have led to the saving of over 20,200 babies in various circumstances, including twins, triplets, and quadruplets. The ongoing war has brought an additional challenge, with 300-400 new cases emerging.

The impact of this interview is tangible. A couple, only married a few months earlier, came across this newspaper, read the interview, and were deeply moved. Their emotional response translated into a generous donation of $50,000. This interview, facilitated by your paper, has directly contributed to the birth of 30-35 children, forming the foundation of two new kindergartens.

The sacred nature of Just One Life's mission is widely recognized. Many years ago, during my time with Rav Matisyahu Salomon, zt”l, he requested a bracha (a blessing) from me. He held my arm tightly until I fulfilled his request. As I offered a blessing to him, I now extend a similar blessing to all those dedicated to this noble cause. May the upcoming Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur be moments of prayer for you, and as your tefillos (prayers) immerse in sacred texts that speak of the multitude of births, take pride in the tangible impact your actions and this newspaper have had. Through your collective efforts, new lives have come into existence in the Holy Land of Israel.

In these challenging times of war, our collective wish is for shalom, peace. Again, I thank you and the 20,200 babies whose lives have been positively affected by our shared dedication to this meaningful cause.

Thank you all for your unwavering support.

Sincerely,
Rabbi Martin Katz, EVP
Just One Life

Dear Editor,

A Holocaust survivor recently conveyed that the emotional turmoil she experienced by the October 7th massacre exceeded the anguish she experienced during the Holocaust. Dovid HaMelech refers to these two haunting events in Chapter 35 in Tehillim, the “Shoah” and “Chamas.” The chapter begins with Dovid pleading to G-d that G-d should fight Dovid's fights. We know well that G-d fights our wars when we're spiritually in order. Yehoshua began to lose one of his battles because he stopped learning. Military victory and service to G-d go hand-in-hand.

We pray, too, that G-d should fight our fights as we continue to grow spiritually.

Steven Genack